The frame

As every painter knows, canvas is not the only component of a canvas! Frames, although more modest, do play their part in a good finished product. With Noel Richards, who has just joined our team full time and is happily sharing his 30 years of experience both in framing and stretching with us, we decided that nothing on the market was quite good enough for what we had in mind. So we designed our very own bracing and stretcher bars. Both are high quality pine with all angles rounded, as no edges means no more marks on the front of the canvas. And, when designing our stretcher bars sloped, we've made sure the angle was right to get rid of those ridge marks all along the sides of your canvas. We also made sure there would be strong bracing to support the bigger frames on the corners, across or crisscrossing depending on the size (cf price list for designs).

The stretch

Well... that's where our "stretched @ the centre" promise becomes a reality.

Firstly because all our frames are hand made in Byron Bay, in Still @ the centre's workshop, but also because, whatever canvas you bring, we'll stretch it tight on our frames so that your artwork will remain firmly stretched... even in the centre!
